

I truly understand that the business of telemarketers need is to cold call people to get the message of their clients to the public. But, I find these calls intrusive. They call early in the morning (prior to 9am) 7 days a week and during dinner hours when I, for one, do not want to be disturbed. When told I have no interest in whatever they are selling these people continue to harass me. The "Do Not Call" program has alleviated my getting these calls early in the morning, dinner time, and on my sabbath. If the NJ "Do Not Call" law is repealed these annoyances will once again resume. I call on your commission not to repeal this law.
